

Subject: Find out how to avoid acne this winter...

Hey |Customer Name|,

Did you know that winter time is when most breakouts occur?

People with mild to severe acne see a peak in their breakouts more in the winter than any other season. The dry winter air causes your body to produce excess oils that clog pores. You know that clogged pores lead to acne breakouts.

We want to make sure your skin stays clear and beautiful this winter. Check out these tips below to keep you acne-free.

HOW TO AVOID WINTER BREAKOUTS:

- Take short, lukewarm showers to prevent dry skin.
- Use gentle cleansers, rather than harsh soaps to protect your natural barrier.
- Exfoliate to remove dead skin cells and unclog pores.
- Moisturize regularly to reduce excess oil production.

Excess oil production is the main reason for winter breakouts.

Just an FYI: Glycerin is one the most underrated moisturizers - it pulls water from the air into your skin!
